Press Reviews (selection)

EVA

FRANKFURTER ALLGEMEINE ZEITUNG: Maryna Zubko brings to life the “morning glow” that Stolzing utopianly evokes in his prize song as a lyrical emanation: a song filled with beauty and a longing for happiness, which also exerts its erotic appeal on Sachs.

SWR: Not only does Eva, played by Maryna Zubko, have the most beautiful voice of the evening, but she also fights fiercely for her sexual autonomy and turns more than just Sachs’s head.

MIMI

LUDWIGSBURGER KREISZEITUNG: The German-Ukrainian soprano Maryna Zubko, celebrated in the opera world in 2024 as ‘Young Singer of the Year’, performs the lyrical role of Mimi in an extraordinary manner.

ELETTRA

SWR: Maryna Zubko’s Elettra captivates with her warm, glowing voice. Finally, not a fury, but a tragic heroine.

CLAIRE D’ASSISE (World premiere of the opera Le petit pauvre d’Assise by Charles Tournemire)

OPERNWELT Juli 2025: In the large ensemble, Maryna Zubko as Claire d’Assise makes a strong impression with her slightly soaring soprano - a cast that would grace the very first houses.

nmz - neue musikzeitung: But Maryna Zubko as his companion Klara also cuts an exceptionally good figure with her dramatically powerful soprano and also shows dramatic weight.

MARIA STUARDA

DER NEUE MERKER 04/2025: With Maryna Zubko, the Ulm Theatre also had a guarantee of success; she was the ideal cast for Maria, as she had been for Anna Bolena. Not only does she have the perfect voice, her colouratura soprano is ravishing in all registers, virtuosic and yet powerful and flourishing, she is also an impressive actress, so absorbed in her role that one suffers with her at every stage and is captivated by her.

SÜDWEST PRESSE: Maryna Zubko sings the title role to great acclaim. Plenty of space for the music. Maryna Zubko makes full use of it: emotional, demonstratively overwhelming top notes. But also lyrical feelings in the cantilenas. Prima donna-like strength. A performance acclaimed by the audience.

DESDEMONA

ORPHEUS März/April 2025: Desdemona tears it up. If there is one fixed Ulm parameter that really makes this new production attractive, it is – for the umpteenth time – Maryna Zubko as Desdemona. She grows to the heavens – and plucks even the most glamorous fruits of sound with ease at the very top, with a rich depth and a gripping middle register.

AGATHE

DER OPERNFREUND: Zubko has a free and expressive, yet not forcing treble; the sensitivities inherent in the opera since the spectacular premiere of the work in Berlin in 1821, when Mad. Seidler sang Agathe, is also present in the Ulm performance: not least due to Maryna Zubko.

ANNA BOLENA

ORPHEUS März/April 2024: Magnificent performance: Maryna Zubko in the title role. She has at her command everything that makes an outstanding belcanto soprano. Purity of tone. Smoothness. Piano culture. Fade in and out. Furore. Great. Any state theatre and its audience would be delighted with her.
